

Lauren Smith
ENG 097
Winter 2012

Reader Autobiography: Part II

Due: April 25 in class
Length: 3-4 typed, double-spaced pages
Grade Point Value: 100 points
Category: Written Reflections

Now that you are close to the finish line of ENG 097, it's time to reflect on our course. To do this, you will write a sequel to your reader's autobiography.

Write a few pages about your experience this semester. How have you changed as a reader? How about your attitudes towards and mastery of reading? What's been the most valuable? What do you hope to work on next? Use your memories of class, your journal entries, your first autobiography, the survey you took at the beginning of the term, and anything else that seems significant to you.

Before you hand your sequel in, be sure to:

1. Reread your journal entries and your survey.
2. Leave enough time before the assignment is due to revise.
3. Review your sentences one by one for clarity. Consider visiting the WRIT Center or asking a friend to look over your work.
4. Make the sequel's title unique to you somehow.
5. Put your name, class, and section number at the top of the page.
6. Number the pages.
7. Staple it!

Assessment

How thoughtfully do I discuss my progress as a reader?	30 points
How much detail do I give about my engagement with reading this semester?	30 points
Do I identify what I would like to do next as a reader?	20 points
Does my writing use a clear scheme of organization?	10 points
How easy to follow and error-free are my sentences?	10 points
Total	100 points